No election problems anticipated in Democrats' second primary

BY DENA BISNETTE

Voters who want to participate in Tuesday's second Democratic primary will not see candidate advertising devices inside polling places.

In addition, voters whose names were deleted from registration lists by a computer in the first primary are not expected to have to vote by affidavit ballot.

According to Hancock County Democratic Executive Committee President Hilda Bourg, both problems were reported during the first primary.

"We don't foresee any of the complications this election we had during the first primary."

Bourg said the names are expected to be replaced in the computer and a state law regarding campaigning in a polling place will be enforced.

She said she feels the candidates who reportedly campaigned near or inside several polling places did so because they were not aware of the law.

The statute prohibits campaigning within 150 feet of a polling place as well as the distribution of printed matter or wearing of buttons, shirts, hats or other apparel printed with a candidate's name or campaign slogans.

"This is a state law. It's not fair to other candidates if some candidates or their supporters do this. It's a misdemeanor if someone does it and gets caught and people don't realize this," Bourg said.

She said members of the executive committee must protect all of the candidates and therefore can not allow candidates and their supporters to enter the polls "with the names of just one or two candidates written all over them."

In addition, Bourg said the deleted names are being replaced in the computer in the Hancock County Circuit Clerk's office.

She said some people had expressed concern that the committee members who opened affidavit ballots would know how they had voted.

"Affidavits are still secret. No one will know how you voted. We just opened them up and put them in a big pile for each precinct and then shuffled them like cards," Bourg explained.

She also said that precautions have been taken against another problem, voting machines that do not work properly.

Bourg said 99 machines are being distributed among 26 precincts, with at least one extra machine at each and two machines at some places such as Diamondhead where a high turnout is expected.

"There should be no waiting in line," the executive committee president said.

In addition, the precinct managers

Additional vehicles damaged included a van, a shop-type pick-up truck and a station wagon. One of the two westbound lanes of the highway was blocked by the accident, which is being investigated by Bay St. Louis Police Officer

Wilbert Dorsey. A second accident which occurred while emergency personnel were still working at the scene damaged two pick-up trucks travelling in the eastbound lane. ## Run-off elections include three supervisor races

BY DENA BISNETTE

Voters will go to the polls Tuesday to decide run-offs in three supervisor races, one county constable race and several state and district races.

Polls for the second Democratic primary are scheduled to open at 7 a.m. and remain open to 7 p.m.

Hancock County Democratic Executive Committee President Hilda Bourg said she expects the best turnout in those precincts affected by supervisor elections, although the constable west district race is also expected to generate some interest.

All three supervisor races include incumbents.

In Beat One, incumbent Bert Courge came in second to his opponent, Robert "Pete" Peterson, by four votes in the first primary. Peterson had 787 votes and Courge had 783 votes, according to official totals.

In Beat Three, incumbent Roger Dale Ladner will face challenger Jerry E. Medford. Ladner led the first primary with 884 votes, followed by Medford with 796.

Incumbent Beat Five Supervisor James Travica also came in first during the Aug. 3 primary, receiving 744 votes. His challenger is Michael "Mike" Ladner, who received 601 votes.

The District Five winner will face a Republican opponent, Mike Anthony, in the November general election.

The constable, west district race is between Harry "Steve" Garber, who led in the first primary with 1,132 votes, and Gary Lynn Bennett, who had 985. . . nett in an incumbent constable for District Two. On January 1, 1987 there will only be a total of constables in Hancock County.

The district races both involve only a few precincts in Hancock County. In the State Senate District 47 race, Lawrence Holliday will face Margaret "Wootsie" Tate and in the State House of Representatives race, incumbent Curtis Holston will run-off against Howard L. Ladner.

There are no Republicans in the house race but the winner of the senate run-off will face a Republican opponent in the November General Election.

State run-offs include Ray Mabius against Mike Sturdivant for the democratic nomination for governor, Dale Danks against Mike Moore for state attorney general, Marshall Bennett against Bill Gilbert for state treasurer and Al Gary and Pete Johnson for state auditor.

The winners of the governor, attorney general, auditor and treasurer races will compete against Republicans in the general election.

NEW TAGS—Deputy Tax Collector and Assessor Gilbert Gayant, left, opens a box of new truck tags as Tax Collector and Assessor Edward Murtagh Jr. looks at the numbering on an automobile tag. The Hancock County Tax Office received 1,500 of the tags Tuesday in an initial shipment provided for distribution starting in October, Murtagh said. He said the new numbering system has seven digits rather than six and is based on a statewide code rather than using different letter combinations for each county. He added that distribution of automobile tags through his office currently averages about 2,000 tags per month. (Staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

Waveland police seek civic center vandals

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Waveland Police Department is still seeking vandals who damaged the auditorium of the Waveland Civic Center Thursday night.

According to Officer Kent Malley, the lock on the back door of the building near the kitchen area was found closed but not locked when the police were called to check the building Friday morning.

The position of the lock apparently kept a burglar alarm from sounding, Malley said.

The vandals, who the officer said could have been juveniles, entered the auditorium itself by knocking down a double door between the auditorium and a hallway.

The officer stated several packages of pesticides which had been donated to the Hancock County Humane Society were emptied onto a mattress that was part of a Waveland Players set.

A powdered insecticide had also been scattered "all over," Malley added.

Damages were estimated at about $300.

ASK OCHSNER

Q. What is myasthenia gravis?

What causes it, what are its effects and treatment and can it be completely cured? C.L.A., Baker, La.

A. According to Dr. Richard Strub, a neurologist at Ochsner Clinic, New Orleans, myasthenia gravis is a chronic disease which produces weakness of muscles, especially of the eyes, shoulders and upper legs.

The principle symptom is increased fatigue and weakness as muscles are used. The muscles that control swallowing, chewing, breathing, and speaking are also often affected.

The disease usually occurs in young adults, particularly females, but can occur at any age. In older adults, the disease affects males more commonly than females.

Signs of myasthenia gravis include drooping eyelids, double vision, loss of normal facial expression, swallowing difficulty, weakness of arms and legs, difficulty in speaking clearly and breathing difficulty.

The onset is usually gradual, but flare-ups may appear after allergic reactions or infections, Dr. Strub says.

The cause of myasthenia gravis is uncertain, but it is linked to an autoimmune disorder in which the body actually produces antibodies against its own muscle tissue.

The disease is sometimes caused by tumors of the thymus gland, a condition most common in the older male patient. The risk of getting the disease increases with a medical history of autoimmune diseases, such as rheumatoid arthritis, or cancer of the lung.

Mothers with myasthenia gravis can sometimes pass the disease onto newborns.

In addition to the damage, black skid marks were found on the floor, but the police have not determined what made the marks.

Malley commented that the civic center has been vandalized a number of times, but most of the calls to which he has been the responding officer have involved broken windows and doors.

Lady Carver, director of the Waveland Players production currently in rehearsal, said, "With the type of problems this situation presents it's dangerous to leave our props and sets there."

"We have had problems in the past," she explained.

"A set for another play was vandalized and the building was nearly set on fire. The prop room has also been broken into several times."

"We are concerned about the safety of the things we leave there because this has happened enough in the past that it's beginning to be a problem."

Success of state's tree farm system attributed to volunteers

Mississippi Forestry Association President Bynum Meeks has seen Mississippi's forestry development make some impressive gains over the past 30 years.

He feels that the prominence attained by the Tree Farm Program may be the most impressive and surely the one with the most sparkle. With nearly 6,000 certified tree farms, Mississippi is the national leader within the American Tree Farm System.

Meeks attributes the state's successful tree farm program to volunteers who don't mind hard work.

There are over 100 foresters who volunteer their time to make tree farm inspections, give management advice, conduct forestry education programs and encourage good forestry management. "The MFA has numerous important functions," says Meeks, "but sponsoring the Tree Farm Program is perhaps its most important."

Working for the government and in industry as a forester for nearly 30 years has given Bynum a broad perspective on forestry in Mississippi. He sees expanded markets as a benchmark in the state's forestry industry development.

Back in 1958 we were cutting only the choice logs and leaving the rest in the woods," says Meeks, "but today we are able to utilize almost everything in the forest. We still have a long way to go but we have made great progress in establishing markets which compliment the raw materials in the woods."

The MFA leader believes that the recent surge in tree planting will eventually have a tremendous economic impact on the state.

"If the resource is available, people will come after it. With the increased new forest acreage, industry now here will expand their markets, or new industry will locate here."

One major problem facing forestry development is inadequate roads and bridges in many areas of the state.

Point of Law

(Prepared by the Mississippi State Bar. Some rights may vary from locality to locality. Always consult an attorney when in doubt about your legal rights.)

Q. A am a widow and own my home. When I die I want my son to have it, but when he dies I want it to go to my granddaughter. Is there any way I can do this?

A. Yes. In your will you can devise the home to your son for the period of his lifetime, with a provision that upon his death the remainder will go to your granddaughter.

If you do this then, even if your son sells his interest in the house, when he dies the ownership automatically goes to your granddaughter.

A United Way Agency

Epilepsy Foundation provides direct services to sufferers

Editor's Note: Following is the second in a series of articles being presented by The Sea Coast Echo on agencies which are partially funded by the United Way of Hancock County. The local United Way is planning a Sept. 25 kickoff for its 1987 fundraising drive. Lounie Clayborn of Waveland is chairman of this year's drive. The goal is $65,000.

The Epilepsy Foundation of Mississippi is a United Way agency in Hancock County.

The foundation provides free services to all persons with epilepsy and their family members. In addition, it presents education projects and provides information to promote better understanding of epilepsy and its consequences.

Direct services to clients are offered in areas of emergency drug referrals and supplemental client assistance. EFM will provide one month's supply of prescribed anti-convulsant medication per year to persons with epilepsy.

Additional financial assistance is available to persons with epilepsy who are members of the foundation and who meet other specific needs criteria.

The foundation provides an employment assistance service which trains persons with epilepsy in vocational application skills and assists with job location and placement.

In areas of education and inservice, EFM provides accredited (by the State Department of Education) inservice training for teachers and other programs for students. These programs center on the recognition and first aid procedures for epileptic seizures.

Educational presentation are also provided for civic, social, and local governmental groups as well as for other United Way agencies in the area.

A local support group for persons interested in epilepsy meets the fourth Tuesday of the month at 7 p.m. at Gulfport Memorial Hospital. Persons interested in obtaining information on this support group should contact its coordinator, Mrs. Warren Galle at 878-7108.

Neurology clinics are provided by the University of Mississippi Medical Center in various state areas. These clinics are held periodically at the Harrison County Health Department in Gulfport.

Persons with epilepsy who cannot afford specialized treatment for their condition should contact the foundation offices in Jackson to schedule an appointment with this clinic.

In addition to the above services, the foundation provides or arranges for parent/patient referrals, consultation and counseling, and coordination with local agencies serving persons with special problems.

EFM has been a United Way agency in Hancock County for the past four years. In that time it has assisted numerous persons with epilepsy in areas described above and provided education on epilepsy to several lay and professional groups.

Persons wishing to know more about the Epilepsy Foundation of Mississippi or wanting a program service provided by this agency, should contact Foundation offices at 4795 McWillie Drive, Suite 245, Jackson, MS 39206; (601) 362-2761.

Timberline

By Mark Jamieson
County Forester

The timber-destroying activity of Southern Pine Beetles remains at a high level among pine stands in the Northwest counties of the State, according to a recent aerial survey of that area flown by the Mississippi Forestry Commission.

A recent detection flight sweeping the timber at 10-mile intervals turned up evidence of perhaps as many as 2,000 spots of beetle infestation in the Forestry Commission's 12-county Northwest District. A survey of the region was started on July 24 to get a more intensive look at the situation. Current flights are being flown at 2-mile intervals.

The news is not all bad though.

According to Commission Entomologist Bill Lambert, the Southern Pine Beetle is appearing on only about half as many spots as last year in the Northeast and East Central Districts. The Southwest and South Central Districts currently are reporting low levels of beetle activity, while the Southeast District, which includes Hancock County, has witnessed practically no activity to date.

The extremely hot, dry weather in recent weeks has put a lot of pine trees under moisture stress and this more often than not brings an increase in pine beetle activity," Lambert noted.

Lambert said landowners are normally notified as beetle spots are verified on their land. However, due to the difficulty sometimes in locating landowners he advises that they should get in touch with their local county forester's office to find out if the beetles have been spotted lately on their property.

Four babies transported to SMH newborn intensive care

The Neonatal Intensive Care Unit at Slidell Memorial Hospital is the temporary home for four babies who were transported there last week.

This is the most babies transported to the NICU since the transport team began operation in January.

The Intensive Care Nursery is host to three baby boys and one baby girl brought in last week by Slidell Memorial Hospital's Neonatal Transport Team from hospitals in Picayune, Covington, and Hammond and from Northshore Regional Medical Center in Slidell.

Three of the babies were born prematurely and are suffering respiratory difficulties. The fourth baby was transported to the NICU for respiratory problems and treatment of low blood sugar.

The Neonatal Transport Team consists of a neonatologist (a physician who specializes in the care of premature and ill babies), a respiratory therapist, and a transport-trained nurse.

In addition, the ambulance is staffed by certified emergency medical technicians (EMT's). Transports of premature or sick babies can be done both by ambulance and by helicopter.

The Neonatal Intensive Care Unit is part of the Regional Women's Center at Slidell Memorial Hospital. The NICU opened in the Fall of 1986 and is designed to care for ill or premature babies needing the care of a neonatologist. The NICU is staffed by nurses trained in intensive care of newborns.

MICHAEL (MIKE) LADNER SETS THE RECORD STRAIGHT!

In 1971, after 20 years of serving my country in the United States Air Force, I retired and returned home to Hancock County. During the last 16 years as a full time resident citizen of Hancock County, I have enjoyed the benefits of living in our county and have determined that with progressive leadership, we can make Hancock County a much better place to live and work, for ourselves and our children. That is why I entered the race for Supervisors of Beat 5.

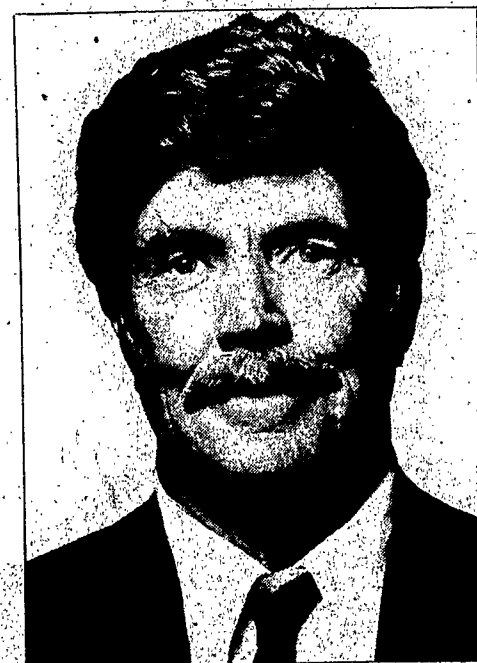

During the last 16 years, I have been more than an observer. I served as the Building Inspector in flood prone areas of our county for 3 years. For more than 7 years, I served as the Hancock County Veterans Service Officer, a position created through the efforts of many caring members of all our local veteran's service groups. I was honored to be able to assist veterans and their dependents in increasing the total annual benefits received by them from $1,834,000.00 in 1979 when I accepted the position to approximately $5,000,000.00 when my tenure in that position ended.

I have never left you. My work as a citizen can be verified all over Hancock County. I was a full time employee of Hancock County for over 10 years. I love Hancock County, this is my home and I am going to strive to bring about the necessary change in our county.

Please - Go to the polls on August 25, 1987 and vote for Michael (Mike) Ladner. Mike stands for progress, leadership and honesty.

I will work hard to be that kind of supervisor—honest, and most of all, fair to all of the residents of District 3—whether you vote in Crane Creek, Standard, Dedeaux, in Diamondhead or North Bay St. Louis. You can count on that.

Vote for good roads—for jobs for Hancock County citizens. Vote for progress and efficient government.

It is important to vote Tuesday

Tuesday is a very important election day for the qualified electors of the the State of Mississippi and Hancock County.

Democratic nominees for three Hancock County Board of Supervisors positions will be settled in a run-off election.

A run-off for Constable West will be settled in addition to the voters of four precincts selecting a State Representative and two precincts selecting a State Senate nominee.

So as you can see, locally it is a very important election.

Democratic nominees on a state level will be settled in run-off elections for governor, attorney general, state treasurer and state auditor. On a state basis, this election is also very important.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

You may want to check with your neighbors and see if they need transportation to the polls.

Please vote Tuesday for the candidates of your choice.

Quotables by CUEVAS

One day this week a mock train derailment will be held in Hancock County to test the preparedness of Civil Defense, Hancock Medical Center and other emergency services.

We know there are some folks who think a mock disaster is not necessary, yet they are practiced in many cities across our nation.

We never know the time of day when a disaster may happen in our area; it is hoped we will never have a real disaster.

The main reason for mock disasters is to test the skills of the personnel of all agencies.

After a mock disaster is held, the performance of each agency is reviewed and changes are made for improvements in performance when necessary.

Robert Boudin, Bay-Waveland-Hancock County Civil Defense director reports the drill will center around a train derailment somewhere in the Bay-Waveland area.

During the drill, certain roads will be blocked to emergency vehicles, just as they would be during a real disaster. Ordinary traffic will be allowed to continue.

We have heard several comments about campaigning violations on election days.

There is a state law not allowing campaigning for candidates within 150 feet of a voting precinct.

It is our understanding this law will be enforced at Tuesday's run-off election.

Next Friday one of America's pioneer in computers will be visiting NSTL.

We are talking about Retired Navy Rear Admiral Grace Hopper, and her visit is sponsored by The Naval Ocean Research and Development (NORDA) Federal Women's Program Committee.

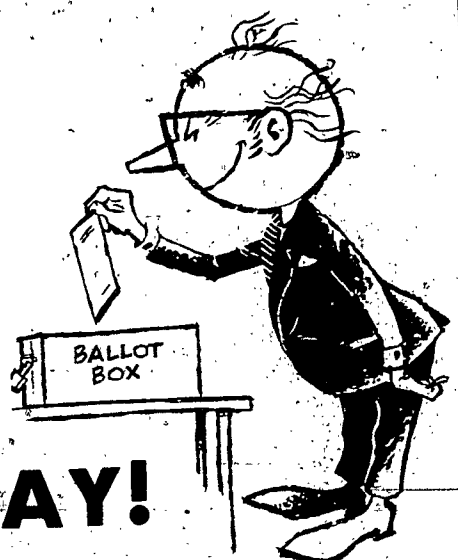

We have seen Admiral Hopper on Educational Television several times and have always enjoyed her telling of some of her experiences as a pioneer in computers.

In the field of computers, Admiral Hopper's contributions to the Navy has been more than anyone else.

When she retired from the U.S. Navy in 1986, at the time she was the oldest U.S. Naval officer on active duty.

Now at the age of 80, Admiral Hopper is a senior consultant with the Digital Equipment Corporation in Washington, D.C.

TUESDAY!

The People's Business

Weekly Editorial
From Mississippi Economic Council

Voters in Rankin County earlier this month showed clear support for the county unit system of government, a result that was not surprising.

More than 70 percent of the Rankin County voters indicated a desire to switch from the beat system to the unit system.

That the public favors the unit system should surprise no one.

Under the unit system, the public gets better services and a more efficient use of tax dollars. The public gets more for the money under the unit system.

Asking county residents to vote on the unit system is like asking them whether they would rather have more efficient government or whether they would prefer to continue with a wasteful, irresponsible system.

It's safe to predict what the answer would be in each of the state's 60 counties still operating under the beat system.

County boards of supervisors do not need a referendum to tell them the will of the people on the subject of good government. That's what the county officials are elected to do—to provide the best services they can at the best use of taxpayers' dollars.

County officials have nothing to fear in enacting the unit system. Officials in Neshoba County voted to go with the unit system and are projected to save $400,000 this year. That savings will come in addition to a tax reduction.

It's time to quit the delays and the excuses in implementing the unit system.

Don't Get a Travel Bug

You've waited long and worked hard for your vacation. Now that it's here, don't let sudden illness ruin your good time. Be prepared.

Each year thousands of Americans become ill during vacation. From minor sunburn to more serious food poisoning, many of these unfortunate events can be prevented.

"The first mistake," says Beth Weinhouse, author of The Healthy Traveler, "is assuming that just because you are a healthy person, you will be healthy while you are away."

While domestic travel poses few health hazards, travel in foreign countries can result in two common ailments - "tourist" and malaria. Tourist usually causes minor discomfort and lasts for a few days.

Malaria, however, is far more serious and should be treated by a physician. To prevent the possibility of contracting these illnesses, the Traveler's Health Activity Department at the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta offers some good advice.

Don't drink the water. As trite as this may sound, it's true. Coffee and tea are usually safe because they're made with boiling water. But, ice cubes are a risky venture. Stick with bottled water and one that's carbonated. The carbonation process kills bacteria.

Resist any food that isn't served steaming hot. Disease-carrying insects are likely to explore a lukewarm dish but will avoid hot foods.

Avoid sidewalk vendors. Most have no means for keeping foods properly chilled or heated. And, in most areas, these vendors have no regulations on the cleanliness of their operation.

Say no to fresh fruits and vegetables unless you can peel them and eat the inside. The fertilizers used in foreign countries often contain bacterial harmful to American stomachs.

Be wary of dairy products that haven't been pasteurized. To protect yourself from malaria when traveling in tropical climates, arm yourself with insect repellents, insect nets and protective clothing.

Before visiting any foreign country, check with local and state health departments to determine what types of health problems are typical there and which vaccinations are required.

To be on the safe side, take along a list of English-speaking physicians, available from the International Association for Medical Assistance to Travelers, 736 Center Street, Lewiston, N.Y. 14092.

Whether your vacation destination is in some tropical jungle or at an amusement park just miles away, it never hurts to be prepared.

Be sure your luggage "musts" include a first-aid kit with the following items - a multi-purpose antibiotic (available from your family physician); a nonprescription pain reliever, such as aspirin or Tylenol; an over-the-counter antihistamine and decongestant; and antacid, anti-diarrhea medication and a laxative; sunscreen, insect repellent, and an anti-bacterial topical ointment; bandages and adhesive tape; and rubbing alcohol, a thermometer and first aid manual.

This "Matter of Health" was prepared in cooperation with the physicians on staff at the University Hospital - the teaching hospital for the University of Mississippi Medical Center.

JACKSON— Mississippi Department of Economic Development Executive Director Jerry McDonald announced the MDED and the State of Mississippi will be hosting a visit from a 'High Tech Mission to the United States' during November. The High Tech Mission is planned and coordinated by the U.S. Embassy, Tokyo. The mission is privately funded and organized by participating Japanese firms.

"This visit is a direct result of the prospecting mission to the Pacific Rim hosted by MDED in July," reported McDonald. The prospecting mission to the Pacific Rim was composed of the largest and most inclusive group of economic development advocates to travel outside the country.

The group of 16, which included elected officials and economic development executives from all areas of the state, met with business, financial and governmental officials in Japan, Taiwan, Hong Kong and Korea.

The mission is composed of 10 to 15 small and medium-sized Japanese enterprises. Current plans call for the mission to visit Mississippi, Denver, Colo.; and Des Moines, Iowa on Nov. 1-12.

The purpose of this unique program is to increase bilateral trade between the U.S. and Japan, especially in the growing field of high technology.

The mission provides a forum for one-on-one business meetings leading to the establishment of sound business relationships.

These relationships may be in the area of agent/distributor agreements, joint ventures, licensing of technology, and raising of capital, but excluding real estate investment.

"This visit will provide an opportunity for meetings between the Japanese and Mississippi firms and will allow Mississippi to showcase recent high technology advances," said McDonald.

REPORT TO MISSISSIPPIANS

Deficit Reduction Should Be Top Priority

With good reason, the American people are concerned about the alarming situation of our growing national debt. On an almost daily basis, mail and telephone calls to my office from constituents in Mississippi reflect the alarm felt over the federal budget deficit.

Over the past twenty years, the United States government has gone deeper and deeper into debt. From the 1970 deficit of $2.9 billion, the federal deficit has grown at an alarming rate to a projected deficit of $174 billion this year. Since 1980, the federal debt has more than doubled, from $1 trillion to $2.2 trillion. Interest on the national debt will cost the country $187 billion in 1987, amounting to 17 cents of every tax dollar.

The situation warrants immediate action. No longer can we continue to spend beyond our country's resources. Priorities must be set for national spending and all efforts must be focused on reducing this tremendous deficit.

The Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit reduction plan passed in 1985, envisioned achieving a balanced federal budget in 1991 by reducing the deficit in yearly steps of $36 billion. However, the measure has been largely ineffective because a central component enforcing across-the-board spending cuts was struck down by the Supreme Court last year.

The Congressional Budget Office estimates that the government will miss the current fiscal year target of $144 billion by $30 billion and must cut about $61 billion from current spending levels to reach the $108 billion target for the 1988 fiscal year. Both Republicans and Democrats have indicated that the $108 billion target is politically impossible.

The Senate recently passed a measure that would amend the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings law and give it new strength in fighting our deficit problem. The amendment would impose an automatic spending cut of $31 billion from projected levels, taken equally from military and nonmilitary programs, unless Congress and the president agree on a deficit-reduction package of that size for the fiscal year.

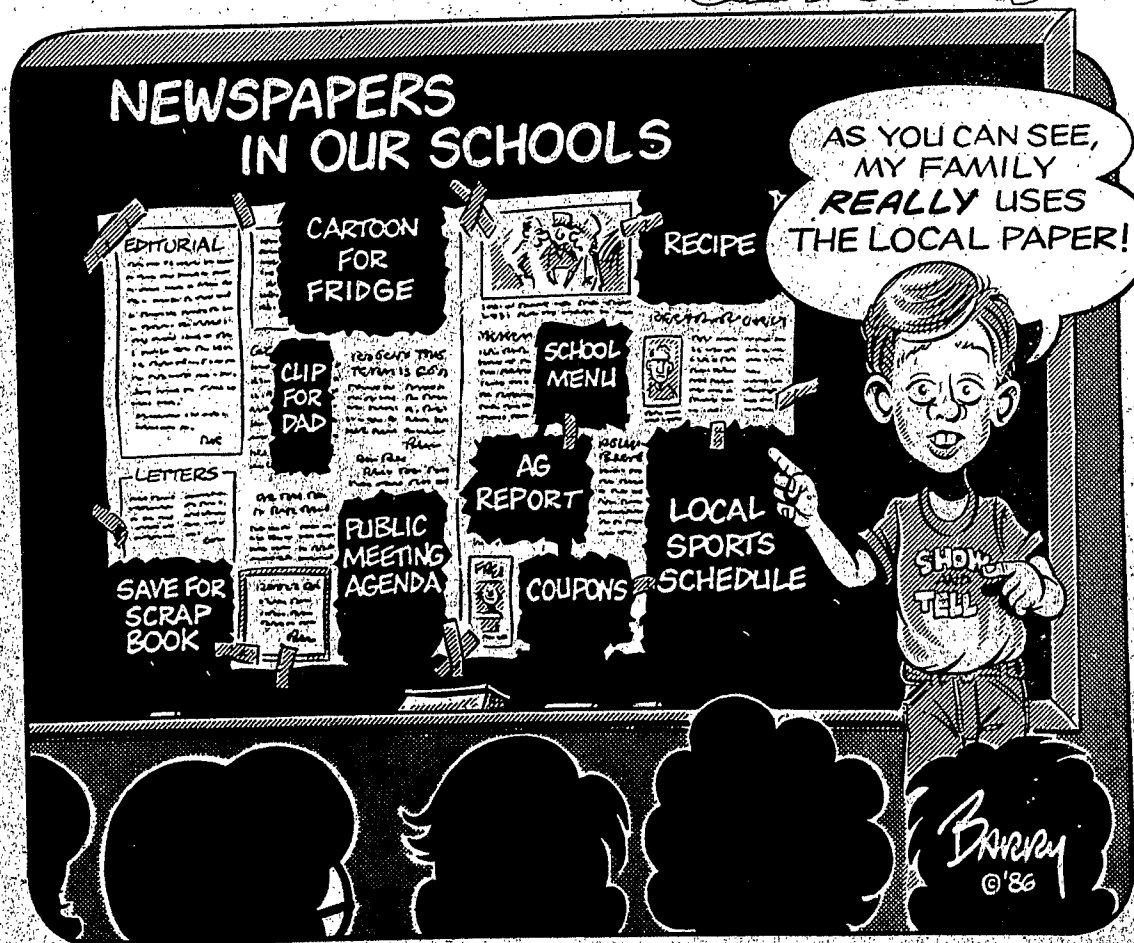

Constitutional problems which caused the Supreme Court to strike down the Gramm-Rudman law were addressed by enhancing the executive branch's participation.

I am encouraged by this action to reinvigorate the Gramm-Rudman deficit plan. It is the closest we have come to doing something meaningful about the federal debt. However, it is not a long-term solution.

I believe a Constitutional amendment is the only thing strong enough to force the difficult decisions which are necessary if we are to live within our means. For more than 15 years I have sponsored and supported a proposed Constitutional amendment requiring that the federal budget be balanced at the end of each fiscal year. Over the years, I have gone on record in support of the amendment on fifteen different occasions and I will continue in my efforts to see it enacted.

Until that time, I will work for spending priorities that provide government services in an effective and efficient way. We must be sure that drastic disruptions do not occur in vital government programs while we work to restore our fiscal stability.

U.S.—JAPANESE IMPASSE

There's a lot of food for thought in an article which appeared in the June 1987 issue of an Americanism publication which points out that this country's real problem with Japan is not trade or trade deficits, but the U.S. stance on Japanese defense 42 years after World War II.

Writing in the National Program Letter of the National Education Program at Oklahoma City, Frank W. Bubb points out that today a significant number of Japanese feel that the U.S. is turning against them out of resentment of Japanese economic successes in the face of what is considered by some to be an American economic and moral decline.

"This growing estrangement from the U.S.," Bubb asserts, "is fed by a misplaced American emphasis on the U.S.-Japanese trade deficit." He adds that Americans are right in believing they are being taken for a ride by the Japanese, but wrong in focusing on the trade deficit when the U.S. after 42 years is still providing national defense for a country which has become the second strongest economy in the world.

Though it may be a bitter pill for Americans to swallow, Bubb says the Japanese probably have the better end of the argument on the trade deficit for these reasons. First, the Japanese save heavily while Americans save little, especially when the federal budget deficit is taken into account. It is then hardly surprising that investment capital is flowing on a massive scale from Japan to the U.S.

America's lack of exports to Japan is caused in large part by U.S. laws, according to Murray Weidenbaum, former chairman of the President's Council on Economic Advisors, who suggest that about $20 billion of our $50 billion trade deficit with Japan could be eliminated if Congress rescinded its bans on the export of Alaskan oil and timber from government lands in the West.

Bubb continues that Japan much publicized barriers to imports actually have relatively little effect.

Most economists estimate that such barriers reduce Japan's imports by $8 to $15 billion annually. Eliminating these would probably cut the U.S. trade deficit with Japan by only $4 to $7 billion.

The Japanese point out, the writer says, that America is hardly free from blame when it comes to erecting barriers to imports. Weidenbaum states, "Only 30 percent of our imports are now allowed in without paying a tariff with numerous non-tariff barriers imposed by federal, state, county, and municipal government. And according to MIT's Lester Thurow, the U.S. definition of 'dumping' is so much broader than the internationally recognized GATT definition that '17 out of the 20 largest U.S. industrial firms could be found guilty of dumping in foreign markets.'"

Given these facts, it is not surprising that many Japanese view American attacks on Japan's trade surplus with this country as attacks on Japan's primary virtues which are hard work, saving, and the ability to mass produce high quality products.

The irony of it all, evaluated Bubb, is that Americans do have a major, legitimate complaint against Japan as the world's premier freeloader when it comes to defense. Earl Ravenal, a noted Georgetown University defense expert, calculates that the U.S. spends $45 billion annually to defend East Asia, or principally Japan, while the Japanese nation itself only spends about $32 billion.

In short, Americans spend more to defend Japan than they do, and this constitutes a transfer or real resources in a form of foreign aid that would be intolerable if it were paid directly as such.

Bubb concludes by suggesting that the U.S. should announce a reasonable timetable for withdrawal of its forces from Japan and the surrounding area, leaving them with their wealth, technological sophistication and historic distrust of the Russians, to assume their own conventional-weapons defense.

Brother Barry takes first vows

Having completed the novitiate, Brother Barry Landry, son of Mrs. Marion B. Gravois and stepson of Mr. Lloyd B. Groavols, became a professed Brother of the Sacred Heart, taking his first vows in the order at St. Stanislaus in Bay St. Louis Saturday Aug. 15.

During the ceremony Brother Barry received a crucifix which the professed Brothers wear with their religious habit.

Present on this occasion were his mother, step-father, sisters, friends, and confreres in religion—the Brothers of the Sacred Heart.

In 1983 Landry graduated from Vandebilt Catholic High School in Houma, La.—where the Brothers have taught since 1952—and entered the Brothers' novitiate in New Orleans that August, attending classes at Loyola.

In January 1986, upon entering the novitiate, he received the black habit worn by members of the order. The novitiate is an 18-month period of personal formation, religious studies, and apostolic service in preparation for vows.

Presently, the novitiate, located near City Park in New Orleans, serves the novices of the three American provinces of the Brothers of the Sacred Heart.

Brother Barry has taught at Catholic High in Baton Rouge, Louisiana. Towards the end of the school year he helped out at St. John the Baptist School in Montgomery, Ala.

For the coming year, he will be stationed at the Brothers' novitiate on Robert E. Lee Boulevard in New Orleans and will attend Loyola.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the mall.

Supervisors to meet with state official on water system grant

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors will meet Monday with a representative of the governor's office to discuss an application for community development block grant funds to build a rural water system in Catahoula Community.

Chancery Clerk Michael Necaize said the meeting is scheduled for 1 p.m.

This is the third year the board has attempted to obtain a grant for the system, which will also serve the Pearl River County Community of Steep Hollow, located on Highway 53 just across the northern Hancock County line.

The application is a joint application by the two counties and is being handled by Harvey Nixon and Associates, a Picayune consulting firm.

Earlier this year, representatives of a group of residents of the community met with the supervisors and appealed for a renewal of efforts to obtain the grant after the board announced its intention to try to get CDBG funds for a new welfare department building.

The board had then been notified that Hancock County could apply for only one grant under the CDBG program each year.

A.A. Kellar, then District Two supervisor, had voted against pursuing the welfare department. Catahoula is located in District Two. The remainder of the board originally ly voted to apply for the welfare department grant, then reversed their decision after a second meeting with the Catahoula and Steep Hollow residents.

The application requests $654,615 in grant funds, to be added to $478,650 in matching funds to cover a total estimated project cost of $1,124,265.

The application gives several reasons the water system is needed, including a dense population in the area to be served, lack of a sewerage system which may lead to a health threat if wastewater run-off contaminates the shallow wells being used for drinking water, a generally low to moderate income for residents and a need for fire protection.

Southern Raspberries Require Expert Hand

By Milo Burnham
Extension Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

Why is it that we always seem to want most that which we cannot have or is hard to get?

While reading a recent copy of The Packer, the national weekly business newspaper of the fruit and vegetable industry, I came across several articles on raspberries. It seems that June through October is raspberry season in the U.S. My mouth began to water at the thought of fresh raspberries, and I immediately had a flash back to the summer of 1983, when visiting my brother in northern New Jersey, I was turned loose in his raspberry patch. After 18 years of living in the deep south without fresh raspberries, I was suddenly in heaven.

Another flash back took me to the 1950s when my favorite ice cream from the Good Humor truck that traveled the neighborhood daily in summer was a raspberry sundae; a dixie cup of vanilla ice cream with a layer of raspberry sauce on top.

Raspberries are one of the most delectable fruits in existence. A serving of fresh raspberries in cream may cost $15 in a New York restaurant, and a half-pint of fresh raspberries is seldom priced under $3 in the grocery store if fortunate enough to find them. These delicate berries once harvested must be kept at 32-33 degrees and 90-95 percent relative humidity. They should be eaten as soon after harvest as possible. The individual berries are so soft that they are packed only 2-3 berries deep in shallow, half-pint containers. The gallon bucket of raspberries I picked for my mother in 1983, was half raspberries and half raspberry sauce after a one hour ride in the car.

Raspberries come in the colors, red, purple, black and yellow, and most of the raspberries produced in the U.S. are grown in California, Washington and Oregon, Michigan and New York also supply some berries. A large portion of the commercial crop is processed since the berries are so perishable.

Raspberries aren't easy to grow under the best of conditions and the deep south probably provides the worst of conditions. The biggest problem in growing raspberries is that there are a lot of diseases that may kill the plants of most varieties before the first berry is harvested. Viruses appear to be the worst of the diseases, and there are also fungal and bacterial diseases that attack the plants and fruit.

In the early 1970s, the Mississippi Agricultural and Forestry Experiment Station released the raspberry variety, Dorman Red. When tested in several southern states, reports on plant vigor, fruit yield and berry size were favorable. Compared to the variety Latham, which is still a popular home fruit variety in the north, Dorman Red plants outlived and out produced Latham.

Hastings Seed Co. in Atlanta, Ga. and Stark Brother's Nursery in Louisiana, Mo. listed Dorman Red, Heritage and other varieties of raspberries in their 1987 retail, mail order catalogs.

Raspberry plants should be set out in early spring. While Dorman Red plants won't produce until the summer of the second year, plants of the Heritage variety produce some fruit the first fall on new canes produced that year. These same canes produce another crop the following summer and because of this the variety is called everbearing. Heritage plants may best be handled in Mississippi by growing them for a fall crop only. This requires cutting the plants completely to the ground after harvest in the fall. The new canes that grow the following spring won't produce a summer crop of raspberries, but will produce a fall crop. The annual removal of all canes in the fall after fruiting eliminates the difficulty of annual removal of dead canes as well as reducing insect and disease problems. All prunings should be burned. Unfortunately this system of pruning won't work with the Dorman Red variety which fruits in the summer on one-year-old canes.

If you have a sunny location with a well-drained soil, consider yourself an expert gardener who is willing to face frustration, take a chance on growing raspberries. If successful, you'll be in for a treat because raspberry jam and frozen raspberries don't come anywhere close to the fresh fruit in flavor or appeal.

Plan, shop carefully

Budget decorating is key for students

Most students who are furnishing their first apartment or house want to get the best possible environment by spending the least possible money.

It is possible, according to Aneta Scarborough, furnishings and interiors specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Budget decorating means different things to different people. To some it means furnishing a home with less than the very best; to others it means buying cheap furnishings," Scarborough said. "For students, budget decorating means getting the most value in terms of usefulness, quality and design for the money spent."

Getting your money's worth also involves using your own ideas and talents. How you display and use pieces in an apartment can play an important part in whether you get your money's worth from the things you have, she said.

Good decorating need not be expensive. Plan and shop carefully. Take advantage of sales, second-hand shops, import shops, outlets and catalog shopping. Buy only what you need. Whenever possible, spend time, energy and talent instead of dollars. With planning and practice, you'll have an attractive, functional home—even on a limited budget.

To begin planning, go through each room in the house or apartment. Make a list of the furnishings in each room. This furniture inventory will help keep track of things that can be used as is, that need repair and that need replacement.

"Take a look at the activities of all those living in the house or apartment; hobbies, interests, and personal preferences," Scarborough said. "Compare these activities with the furniture inventory."

What furniture do you really need? Can some pieces be used differently to meet someone's need? Small, inexpensive changes made by using your ingenuity can really make a difference, she said.

Teachers to get assistance on special student problems in HNC Junior High program

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

The Hancock County School District is one of 11 districts throughout the state which will be piloting a program to help children with problems to be more successful at school.

This program utilizes a group of teachers who brainstorm ideas for teachers with students who have academic and or behavior problems, according to Dr. Kate Reynolds, coordinator for special education in the district.

"We are delighted to be selected as one of the districts to implement the Alternative Education/Continuum of Education Services program because it will fit into our program for reteaching skills as required in accreditation standards," she said.

"This program is particularly exciting because it utilizes instructional skills that successful regular and special education teachers possess and devises a system by which these skills are shared by all teachers to the benefit of the children in the schools," Reynolds said.

Teachers who have been unsuccessful in dealing with a particular student's problem in the classroom, presents the problem to the TEAM (Teams of Educators Assisting Mississippi) which comes up with new ideas or programs for the teacher to try with the student, Reynolds added.

The teacher tries new ideas or programs to teach the student and returns to the TEAM for review and additional ideas if necessary.

"As a last alternative the student may be moved to a Chapter 1 or special education classroom even though the child is not judged as eligible for special education," she said.

The student will attend this class as long as necessary before returning to the regular classroom.

In allowing this, the state department has effectively said forget about labels just give students what they need to learn, Reynolds continued.

"Sometimes when we draw lines between students and label them, a student is kept away from what they really need," she said.

"This is the way education should be moving, Reynolds said.

There are so many teacher with skills and ideas that are never tapped, she added.

"The TEAM is also non-judgmental and there is no shame for a teacher to admit they have tried their methods and it did not work for a particular student,"

Loiacano still hospitalized

Bay St. Louis resident J.E. Loiacano Jr. remains in protective isolation at Hancock Medical Center after being burned last week in an accident at his residence.

A hospital spokesperson said Loiacano was in "good to stable condition" Saturday afternoon.

He is not in a special ward at the hospital but visitors are restricted to family members at this time in order to protect him from possible infection, the spokesperson added.

News Brief

CHAMBER GUEST

Congressman Trent Lott will be the guest speaker at the Pass Christian Chamber of Commerce Annual Membership Dinner, according to Chamber President Evelyn Gregory.

The dinner will be held on Thursday, Sept. 3 at the Pass Christian Yacht Club at 7:30 p.m., preceded by a Social Hour beginning at 6:30 p.m. Chamber members and their guests are invited to attend. Reservations may be made by calling the chamber office at 452-2252.

Reynolds said.

The TEAM is a problem-solving group of teachers helping teachers and the long-term goal is to provide effective learning environments for all student with unique learning needs.

The goal of Mississippi's TEAMS is to be consistent with a national effort to restructure the relationship between regular education and special services, according to state-released reports on the project rationale.

In the Hancock School District, the program will be implemented at the junior high school level.

Reynolds reported Principals Cecil Powell and Donald Hillman will direct the program at Hancock North Central Junior High School.

There are currently 453 students in grades seven through nine at this school. Sixty-three of these students are eligible for Special Education Sources.

Successfully utilized in 10 other states, the program has been refined for implementation in Mississippi schools by Dr. Walter Moore of the State Department of Education, Reynolds added.

Funding for the program was set aside by the state last year and participating school districts are each receiving grants of $21,800.

These funds will be used to employ two assistant teachers which will allow targeted students to receive more individualized help.

Substitute teachers will also be employed to provide instructional coverage for TEAM member who are away from their class while participating - the teacher support meetings.

Also the funding will be utilized to have consultants train faculty and staff to participate in the program and to allow participants attend associated workshops.

Instructional supplies, including workbooks and software, will be purchased as needed to assist in the implementation of the instructional program suggested by the TEAM.

Waveland post office not scheduled to close

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Waveland Post Office on Coleman Avenue will remain open, although distribution of mail will be handled through the new Bay St. Louis facility being constructed on US-90.

At Wednesday's meeting of the Waveland Board of Aldermen, Mayor John Longo Jr. said he had received a letter from postal officials dispelling rumors that the Waveland post office is closing.

The letter, signed by Norman L. Dille, manager of the post office's Gulfport service area, stated the present post office will remain open as a full-service postal station with box services.

However, due to a lack of space for growth, mail taken into the Coleman Avenue station will be sent to the new Bay St. Louis facility for processing and distribution.

The change will not directly affect the public and is expected to improve the quality of service, Longo said.

Also on Wednesday, the aldermen:

—Accepted the resignation of Henry Cook III as city prosecutor and appointed J.P. Compretta as his successor;

—Set a special meeting on the

She also said help may be provided to voters needing assistance to read the ballot, but the person assisting such a voter may not tell that individual how to vote.

Mike Ladner is shown presenting Mr. Ray Favre, of Kiln, with the VFW Distinguished Service Award upon Mr Favre's retirement from the Ms. Postal Service in 1976. An order had been issued by the Postal Services, that the Kiln Post Office would be permanently closed upon Mr. Favre's retirement. Through the efforts of Mike Ladner, the Kiln Post Office has remained open to fully serve the people of the Kiln Community. Another one of Mike Ladner's many public services.

When you go to the polls on August 25, 1987 please consider Michael (Mike) Ladner for your next District 5 Supervisor of Hancock County.

Hancock County named for bold American patriot

Editor's Note: To further celebrate the 200th anniversary of the signing of the United States constitution The Friendship Oak Chapter, NS DAR presents a research paper covering little known facts about John Hancock for whom Hancock County was named. Joe Pilet, a charter member of the chapter, lives in Bay St. Louis as did

It takes a bit of digging into old court records, letters, etc. to glean information to assist in depicting the character of this complex and unusual man.

Shall we begin at the beginning? John Hancock was born on January 12, 1737 in Braintree, Massachusetts. His grandfather was the Rev. John Hancock who for more than half a Graduate was put to work in his father's merchantile establishment where he did very well.

Then to round out his education a couple of years were spent in travel visiting several European countries where he was accepted by royalty. While in England he attended the funeral of George the Second and saw the coronation of George the Third.

When Thomas Hancock died he left his entire fortune amounting to about $350,000 to his adopted son as well as his beautiful mansion. This made John Hancock one of the richest men in Massachusetts.

He said his objective was not to make money, but to give employment to many and to share his good fortune with others. Life was filled with gaiety at the Hancock Mansion.

Hancock owned a ship called Liberty, and he had a vested interest in several sea-going vessels. It is a recorded fact that John Hancock was a smuggler. He despised the taxes imposed by the British.

A classic case is that of the good sloop Liberty which carried a cargo of Madeira wine. Its crew locked the British custom officer in a cabin and unloaded the wine without paying the required duty. The British seized the vessel, brought an unsuccessful suit against Hancock, riots followed.

John Hancock was in trouble with the Court of Admiralty. Claims against him amounted to more than $300,000. An order was out for Hancock's arrest. He and Samuel Adams went in hiding.

The patriot Paul Revere was born in 1735. He was about the same age as Hancock and it was he who carried the news of the approaching British. Adams and Hancock warned of the danger had time to escape. Revolution was in the minds and hearts of the colonists.

John Hancock played an inconspicuous part in the 8 years of the Revolutionary War. Col. George Washington tactfully regretted there was no place at his disposal worthy of Col. Hancock's qualifications. It was quite obvious that Hancock and Washington had their differences.

Samuel Adams, born in 1722, was about thirteen years older than John Hancock. He was an outspoken patriot and made many speeches

He was President of the Continental Congress from 1775-77. He was 38 years old when he assumed this responsibility. The reason he was selected President of the congress is less obvious. As presiding officer he had no voice in the proceedings—unless there was a vote tie.

Samuel Adams used his influence in getting Hancock selected to this office. He well knew the temperament and background of Hancock. He knew, too, that Hancock was ambitious to become the commander of the Continental Army.

The man for that position should be, in Adams studied opinion, a person from the South, an aristocrat, a person's handwriting reveals much about his character, temperament, and ability.

John Hancock's overly large signature could be interpreted as that of an egotist—eager to call attention to himself. Some might say it was the mark of a bold and brave person.

The graceful and beautifully shaded letters surely were a mark of education and culture. In those days much emphasis was placed on penmanship. The signature took up a lot of space. Could that indicate a generous nature? After signing the document Hancock is quoted as saying: "I guess King George can read that without spectacles." Aged before his time with worry, stress, Bright's Disease and gout, John Hancock died at the age of 56. He was buried in Old Granary Burying Grounds. No headstone marker was placed on his grave. Many years later one was erected by the State of Massachusetts.

His widow married a captain whose last name was Scott. He was at one time employed by Hancock as master of a brig and boastfully said: "I am now at the helm of the Hancock Mansion."

Hancock died in office. He was first governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

In the year 1817 Hancock County was born. In the hearts and minds of Hancock County settlers a marker was placed. It was erected to the memory of John Hancock, a brave soldier, patriot, and defender of precious liberties. John Hancock is dead. Long live Hancock County!

JOHN HANCOCK

her ancestors, the C.C. Hart family. She is known throughout the county as editor of Heritage Editions of the Sea Coast Echo.

BY JOE PILET

At an early age our children are taught that Hancock County was named in honor of the great patriot, John Hancock, bold first signer of the Declaration of Independence and a strong leader in the establishment of "a new nation, conceived in Liberty."

The name Hancock is a familiar household word in Bay St. Louis, Waveland, Kiln and other communities within Hancock County and spilling over into the adjoining counties of Harrison and Pearl River. We have a group of Hancock Banks and travel agencies, streets, courts and business establishments all named in memory of John Hancock.

Ask any school child who John Hancock was and you are likely to get that stereotyped reply: "He was the man who lived a long time ago and signed the Declaration of Independence in great big letters."

And there begins and ends the average student's knowledge of the life and works of this man! This is not shocking. No historian ever wrote a biography of John Hancock. He had no children. Heirs and relatives left little information.

century was The Minister of Lexington. A man of power whose words carried weight.

His son, also named John Hancock, was a minister. A minister with a vision shared by his wife.

They would save money for the education of their son, name him John Hancock, send him to Harvard and he would become a minister...maybe in Boston.

And so our patriot John Hancock had his life cut out for him. Only the plans did not materialize for the good minister died while his son was very young and the widowed mother could not afford the cost of higher education.

However, this youth was a favorite of, his uncle Thomas Hancock, reputed to be "the richest merchant in Boston."

Uncle Thomas legally adopted young John Hancock, dressed him in finery and frills and gave him a more than generous amount of spending money. And spend it he did!

Uncle and foster father, Thomas Hancock, saw his protege through Harvard where his scholastic record wasn't exceptional. But his social life was filled with dances, entertainments and conviviality.

To groom him for the position he would some day hold, the Harvard

Historial society sets Wednesday meeting

The August meeting of the Hancock County Historical Society will be held at noon Wednesday.

The Dutch treat luncheon will be at the Landmark Restaurant on Main Street in Bay St. Louis.

The guest speaker will be Franklin J. Cuevas who will discuss the life of Coast pioneers Juan de Cuevas and Christian Legnir and Cat Island.

Cuevas is the author of a book on this subject and a direct descendant of Juan de Cuevas.

Juan de Cuevas was a hero of the Battle of New Orleans when he refused to give directions to the captain of the British warships on how to get to New Orleans via the Rigolets.

This delay allowed General Jackson time to gather and arrange his troops for the crucial battle in Chalmette.

All members and other interested individuals are invited to attend.

The September meeting of the society will host Keith Hardison, superintendent of Beauvoir.

Due to the restaurant's vacation closure, the meeting will be held on Sept. 30. Usually the meetings are held on the fourth Wednesday of the month.

Dr. Bill Bradford is society president.

Military Mention

CADET LITTLE

Cadet Charles P. Little, son of Charles F. Little of Lakeshore, received practical work in military leadership at the U.S. Army ROTC advanced camp, Fort Riley, Kan.

Successful completion of the advanced camp and graduation from college results in a commission as a second lieutenant in either the U.S.

Army, Army Reserve or National Guard for the cadet.

Little is a student at Mississippi State University.

PVT. AUSTIN

Army National Guard Private Troy J. Austin, son of Aliene M. and Gerard J. Austin of Pearlington, has completed basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

During the training, students received instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

Bennett-Anderson

Mrs. Myra Bennett of Pearlington announces the forthcoming marriage of her daughter, Carol Marie Bennett, to Charles Dewayne Anderson, son of Charles Anderson of Pearlington and Sharon Wingate of Cherry Valley, Ark. Miss Bennett is the daughter of the late William (Bubba) Bennett.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Hancock North Central High School and attended Pearl River Junior College and Ranger Junior College in Ranger, Tex.

Mr. Anderson is a graduate of Hancock North Central High School where he played varsity football. He is employed with United Post Tension.

United Methodist Church in Pearlington will be the setting for the September 5 marriage at 6 p.m. Friends and relatives are invited to attend.

KIMBERLY GOODMAN AND DAVID JONES JR.

Trinity Episcopal Church in Pass Christian was the setting for the June 6 afternoon marriage of Josephine McKie Billups and Montgomery George Rollins of Pensacola, Fla. The Right Reverend Bronson H. Bryant, pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Gaynel Gex Billups of Pass Christian and Mr. Guy Billups Jr. of Gulfport. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Rollins of Pensacola.

Decorating the sanctuary were tall arrangements of white gladioli, snapdragons, fugi mums and springer fern.

Nuptial music was presented by soloist Suzanna Andrews of Pass Christian.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of candlelight satin, fashioned with scalloped neckline and deep-V back. French alencon lace and pearls adorned the fitted bodice. Her heirloom veil featured Brussels lace.

The bride carried a bouquet of white phalaenopsis orchids, freesia, stephanotis and English ivy.

Betty Billups of Los Angeles,

Calif. attended her sister as maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Lamar Billups of Gulfport, sister of the bride; Donna Gay Borden and Sandy Stuard of Hammond, La.; Sharon Tippett of Greenwood; Niki Gex of Jackson and Rachel Gex Farmer of Atlanta, Ga., cousins of the bride.

Flower girls were Virginia and Lee Ann Chapleau of Pensacola.

The attendants were identically attired in teal satin dresses with deep-V back and small train. They wore teal teardrop caps with face veils, and carried pale peach kyria roses, freesia and stephanotis with pittosporum foliage and English ivy.

Serving as best man was Bruce Bell of Pensacola.

Groomsmen were Allen Williams, Tommy Rollins, brother of the groom, Tommy Judkins and Ferest Gibbs, all of Pensacola; and Walter Billups and Guy Billups of Pass Christian, brothers of the bride.

Ushers were Joseph William Gex III and Joseph Gex IV of Bay St. Louis.

Davis Pratt of Greenwood was ring bearer.

Mrs. Billups chose for her daughter's wedding a peach satin tea length gown with embroidered lace overlay and satin sash at the waist. Mrs. Rollins was attired in a peach tea length dress with long sleeves, scooped neckline and lace overlay.

A garden reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Omer DeBever of Bay St. Louis.

On return from a wedding trip to Cancun, Mexico, the couple resides in Pensacola.

MR. AND MRS. DENNIS WALLACE LACOSTE

Lacoste-Behling

Kristine Lynea Behling and Dennis Wallace Lacoste exchanged wedding vows May 30 in an outdoor evening ceremony at Wolf River Ranch Resort.

The bride is the daughter of Patrick G. and Linda Behling of Poplarville. The groom's parents are Irving F. and Dorothy Lacoste of Bay St. Louis.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a tea length gown of satin and lace. Her bridal portrait hat featured an attached veil of illusion. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Teresa L. Grubbs of Poplarville was maid of honor. She was attired in a hot pink taffeta tea length dress and carried a nosegay of matching carnations and wore baby's breath in her hair.

Kyle Haas of Kiln was best man. A reception followed the ceremony at the resort.

Goodman-Jones

Ronald and Jerri Goodman of Waveland announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Kimberly Goodman, to David Jones Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. David Jones Sr. of Bay St. Louis.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Bay Senior High School.

The prospective groom attended

Hancock North Central and is employed with Southern Frosted Foods.

The couple will exchange vows August 29 in a 2 p.m. ceremony at First Baptist Church in Waveland, with reception following at the Waveland Civic Center on Coleman Avenue.

Rarely seen sacred art honors Pope's visit

A collection of little seen local Christian religious art in the Roman Catholic tradition is featured in an exhibition entitled "Sacred Treasures: An Exhibition in Honor of the Papal Visit." The works are on display at the New Orleans Museum of art through Sept. 27, 1987.

Featured in the exhibition will be religious artifacts, many in gold and jewels. Most of the pieces are ceremonial in nature and reflect the pagentry of the Catholic Church. The collection will also include rare needlework medallions, ornate crosses, and relics of both the True Cross and St. Louis King of France.

At the center of the exhibition will be the 1938 Eucharistic Monstrance featured at the World's Fair Vatican Pavilion, and now on extended loan to NOMA. The monstrance, designed by Bernard and Grunning, Inc. of New Orleans, is a stunning record of the history of the early Catholic Church in the city. The embossed gold artifact depicts the first Eucharistic Procession on July 17, 1734 led by the Ursuline nuns and Bienville, the founder of New Orleans. Heavily jeweled with more than 231 diamonds and other precious stones, the piece was used in the 1938 Eucharistic Congress outdoor mass, celebrated in City Park Stadium.

NOMA is also privileged to house 10 Bruges stitchery medallions illustrating the mysteries of the Holy Rosary. The medallions, originally sewn on banners, were thought lost but discovered recently in the attic of St. Anthony Padua Priori in New Orleans. Although more than 40 years old, the medallions are considered in mint condition and a valuable addition to the exhibit.

On display will be what may be the best replica of the statue of Our Lady of Prompt Succor, on loan from the Archdiocese of New Orleans. Housed in the Ursuline Convent, the statue will be displayed with two jeweled, ceremonial crowns placed on the head of the Virgin and Christ Child during the Fest of Our Lady of Prompt Succor.

The ornate paten and chalice, used daily by Archbishop Hannan and to be used by Pope John Paul II in the outdoor mass on Saturday, Sept. 12, will also be on display before and after his visit. The two vessels were made about the same time and by the same manufacturer as the Monstrance.

From a permanent collection, several works from the Museum's Kress paintings, as well as selections of Central and South American religious art and sculptures are on display to compliment the other pieces in the exhibition.

Everybody's Science

Country garden comes to town

The sight of 12 nuns dancing and singing in a living gazebo of flowers at the National Country Garden gave Marc Cathey great satisfaction.

"One of the sisters told me that they often visited the Arboretum," said Cathey. "But this new garden," she said, "built on federal land out of care for people, just made us break out in joyous song and dance."

As director of the U.S. National Arboretum, Cathey had gone out on a limb to establish the Garden in 1984. He had wanted the new garden, one of 88 at the Arboretum, to express the spirit of independence and self-reliance of America.

But it would be a departure from the country estate ambience of the 60-year-old Arboretum. The 444-acre green oasis in bustling northeast Washington is a living laboratory for scientists of the USDA's Agricultural Research Service, and it contains one of the world's best collections of landscape plants.

In contrast, the National Country Garden began as a collection of found lumber and discarded concrete forms. But that was precisely the point!

The Garden is a model for teaching city dwellers how to build and use gardens in confined spaces with discarded materials. On display are small urban gardens for townhouses and apartment balconies, raised beds for narrow side lots, and container and kitchen window gardens. The project is designed to show people how to deal with problems such as too much sun or shade or too little water.

"The Garden is for all people—the poor, the affluent, the city dweller, the suburbanite," said Cathey. "It is a tribute to the importance of gardens in life and particularly the importance of family gardens in the urban environment. I think that good gardens mean good neighborhoods."

The National Country Garden also displays gardens that can be tended by people who use wheelchairs or walkers, and vegetable gardens that can produce $50-400 worth of produce. Harvested vegetables and cut flowers are donated to local soup kitchens.

One of the most striking features of the Garden is an area of vertical plantings. Containers of plant potting mix are built upon each other. Plants, fed by liquid fertilizers, grow out of the sides and top of each container. The planters are used to build flower-covered walls, arbors, a maze, a teepee, a wishing well and, of course a gazebo for singing nuns. (Agricultural Research Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture).

Pass Christian schools sponsoring 'Child Find'

The Pass Christian School District is participating in the continuing statewide "Child Find" program for handicapped students. Child Find Coordinator, Dr. Lorice A. Broome, is responsible for identifying, locating, and evaluating children from birth through the age of twenty-one who are physically, mentally, educationally, communicatively, and/or emotionally handicapped. Early identification of children in need of special educational experiences is most important to each child. The information collected will help determine present and future program needs.

Pass Christian Schools offers the following programs to handicapped students: Educable Mentally Retarded, Emotionally Handicapped, Learning Disabilities, Hearing Impaired, and Speech Therapy in grades K-12.

Information which could identify an individual child will be maintained in accordance with district confidentiality procedures. Parents are guaranteed the right to inspect any information and to verify its accuracy.

Public invited to comment on funding for social services

The public is invited to submit comments on expenditure of an estimated $29.5 million in Social Services Block Grant (SSBG) funds in Mississippi during the federal fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, 1987.

The Social Services Block Grant (SSBG), administered by the Department of Planning and Policy (DPP), Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs, provides federal funding for social services to needy Mississippians.

The funds will be allocated to four state agencies—the Mississippi Council on Aging, the Mississippi

Department of Health, the Mississippi Department of Mental Health and the Mississippi Department of Public Welfare—to reduce the dependency of Mississippi's vulnerable population and to achieve and maintain self-sufficiency and support.

"We're trying to look at social services as part of the overall development of the state," said Lynda Owen, SSBG administrator for the Department of Planning and Policy.

Copies of Mississippi's Social Services Block Grant State Plan for Fiscal Year 1988 are available from the Department of Planning and Policy, 2000 Walter Sillers Building, Jackson 39201, telephone 359-3150. The deadline for comments is 5 p.m. Aug. 28.

The plan includes proposed expenditures based upon Mississippi's SSBG allocation of $29,537,717 for the current fiscal year. The actual amount will be determined by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services prior to Oct. 1.

The plan proposes allocations of $17,136,401 to the Department of Public Welfare, $6,464,740 to the Department of Mental Health, $3,787,770 to the Council on Aging and $1,558,052 to the Department of Health. In addition, one percent of the SSBG funds would be set aside for urgent needs, and one percent would be used for program administration.

Specific programs that would be funded under the state plan include adoptive and foster care services for children, case management of the needs of elderly individuals and welfare and mental health recipients, congregate and home delivered meals for senior citizens, day care for children and the elderly and protective services for children and adults.

Proposed allocations were determined by Negotiated Investment Strategy (NIS) sessions involving representatives of DPP, the Health and Human Services Block Grant Advisory Board and the four agencies that will receive SSBG funds. NIS negotiators adopted four service categories for SSBG funding and incorporated a Mission and Purpose

Statement in the state plan.

The service categories are self-sufficiency—social support services which directly relate to decreased or non-government assistance in daily living; protection—social support services which are essential to the protection or well-being of an individual family; maintenance—social support services which are essential or necessary to allow an eligible individual to maintain an existing standard of living; and other social support services which relate to the overall well-being of an individual.

NIS negotiators determined that approximately 40 percent of the SSBG funding would be used for self-sufficiency services, 40 percent for protection, 10 percent for maintenance and 10 percent for other services.

The Mission and Purpose Statement establishes protection of vulnerable persons and assistance to individuals in becoming and remaining self-sufficient as "the two-fold mission of the Social Services Block Grant in Mississippi."

Essex Cable TV will be performing a complete rebuild of its existing trunk lines during the next few weeks. This will enable the system to add more channels, offer a better quality of service and a greater variety of programming to subscribers. In order to complete this project, it will be necessary to shut down the power on each section as the new equipment is being spliced in. It may take up to three or four nights to finish each phase. To minimize the inconvenience, as much of the work as possible will be done between midnight and early morning, with this upgrade, Essex plans to launch additional basic and premium channels to meet the demands of the viewers.
